Chief Product Officer and Co-founder
Quantexa Ltd, UK

Alexon is a Chief Product Officer and co-founder at Quantexa, a contextual decision intelligence software company empowering organizations to accelerate digital transformation with meaningful data for better, trusted enterprise decision-making.

Alexon has over 20 years' experience in building and deploying software solutions to help detect, prevent and investigate financial crime. Alexon has also worked as a consultant at various banks to help them with their Anti-Money Laundering (AML) change programs specifically to deliver enhancements to Anti-Financial Crime control frameworks, as well as the creation of new software applications and processes to help mitigate financial crime risk.

Most recently at Quantexa, Alexon has been focused on developing new approaches to detecting and investigating financial crime by coupling advanced data management techniques (entity resolution) with network generation (graph theory), Artificial Intelligence, and Machine Learning. Alexon is leading the creation, development, and deployment of an approach to detecting financial crime called "contextual monitoring". This approach is proven to be very effective at identifying the complex forms of money laundering activity that is found in Financial Markets (Foreign Exchange, Precious Metals, Equities, Fixed Income, etc), Trade Finance (Letters of Credit, Import and Export Bills, etc), Correspondent Banking (SWIFT international payments) and business or corporate banking.

As part of his work, Alexon has also helped several non-financial institutions investigate cases linked to ivory smuggling, wildlife trafficking, human trafficking, and bribery and corruption with links to child slavery.

Before forming Quantexa, Alexon has held several leadership positions at various software companies, including SAS, Oracle, and Actimize, and started his Anti-Financial Crime journey at a software company called Searchspace, which built the first-generation of Transaction Monitoring systems.

Alexon is a Certified Anti Money Laundering Specialist(CAMS) and has a Diploma in AML from the International Compliance Association.
